Steadman fills an empty niche in the offerings on how archaeology interprets past religions with this useful textbook. The book includes case studies from around the world, from the study of Upper Paleolithic religions and of shamans in foraging societies to formal religious structures in advanced complex societies of Mesopotamia, Egypt, India and the Andes. Steadman also includes key contemporary religions Christianity, Islam, and Buddhism, among others to provide an historical and comparative context. This is an ideal text for a archaeology of religion courses and classes that include a significant component on past religions, as well as an excellent guide for general readers.

"At long last, a thorough and readable introduction to the archaeology of religion. Perfect for students, this volume will also prove invaluable to professional archaeologists concerned with studying and understandings sacred sites, landscapes and artifacts." - David S. Whitley, Author of Introduction to Rock Art Research and Cave Paintings and the Human Spirit From the Inside Flap This textbook shows how archaeology interprets past religions including case studies from around the world, describing religious practices of both foragers and ancient complex societies About the Author Sharon R. Steadman is currently the Associate Professor of Anthropology, Coordinator for the International Studies Program, and Director of the Rozanne M. Brooks Museum, all at SUNY Cortland. In addition to her work at the university, Steadman is the editorial assistant of Bulletin of the American Schools of Oriental Research and is also the assistant director of the Alishar Regional Project.
