Margrit Pernau : Ashraf Into Middle Class: Muslims in Nineteenth-Century Delhi before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Ashraf Into Middle Class: Muslims in Nineteenth-Century Delhi:

Nineteenth-century Delhi was marked by a curious mixture of political upheaval and cultural resurgence. Drawing on a wide variety of little known sources in Urdu and Persian, apart from the more conventional British records, this book provides a revelatory and vivid narrative of Muslims in the period covering the British conquest in 1803 to the end of the Khalifat movement in 1922. Moving away from the tendency of studies on Muslims to focus on religious identity, this book allows us to historicize Islam and socially contextualize its many manifestations.

"This is an ambitious and sophisticated work of historical scholarship that engages with current debates on identity, community formation, religion, gender, communalism, and politics in nineteenth- and early twentieth-century South Asia."-H-Net
