Fay Hempstead : Historical Review of Arkansas, Vol. 3: Its Commerce, Industry and Modern Affairs (Classic Reprint) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Historical Review of Arkansas, Vol. 3: Its Commerce, Industry and Modern Affairs (Classic Reprint):

Excerpt from Historical Review of Arkansas, Vol. 3: Its Commerce, Industry and Modern AffairsThe maiden name of the wife of Charles C. Reid, Sr., was Sarah Robinson, who is still living. Born in Kentucky, she came with her parents to Arkansas when a young girl, and here married. She was a woman of talent, and during the Constitutional Convention referred to above was a journal clerk, being the first woman to hold a position of that character in Arkansas, and for about a dozen years thereafter she occupied similar clerical positions in the various sessions of the State Legislature. She has much literary ability, and has compiled and edited several volumes of poems, chief among which is one entitled Immortelles, the contents of which were suggested to her by her father.About the PublisherForgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
