From Amsterdam University Press : Islamic Studies in the Twenty-First Century: Transformations and Continuities before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Islamic Studies in the Twenty-First Century: Transformations and Continuities:

In recent decades, traditional methods of philology and intellectual history, applied to the study of Islam and Muslim societies, have met with considerable criticism from rising generations of scholars who have turned to the social sciences, most notably anthropology and social history, for guidance. This change has been accompanied by the rise of new fields, studying, for example, Islam in Europe and Africa, and new topics, such as the role of gender. This collection surveys these transformations and others, taking stock of the field and showing new paths forward.

About the Author Lon Buskens holds the chair of Law and Culture in Muslim Societies at Leiden University and is director of the Netherlands Interuniversity School of Islamic Studies, where Annemarie van Sandwijk is an editor.
