It contains the best chosen fragments from "Book of the Golden Precepts". The glossary at the end of the book makes it easier to understand the chosen fragments, giving additional explanations of certain words and phrases. The glossary is a useful tool as the chosen fragments are a verbatim reproduction of the original edition of 1889. The book is for the daily use of Lanoos (disciples). This work is part of the same series of the Book of Dzyan which the Secret Doctrine is based on. The 1st fragment speaks of the 3 halls. 1st hall is Ignorance. 2nd Hall is the Hall of Learning (Probationary Learning). 3rd Hall is Wisdom. The 7 manners to hear the voice of the higher self are: 1) Like the nightingale's sweet voice; 2) A silver symbol; 3) Ocean sound in a shell; 4) Chant of Viner (Indian stringed instrument); 5) Bamboo flute; 6) Trumpet; and 7) thunder. The 2nd stage is to hear and see 4 modes of truth are: Ku-Suffering or misery; Tu- the assembling of temptation; Mu - their destruction; and Tau - the path. 5 impediments are the knowledge of misery, truth about human frailty, oppressive restraints and the absolute necessity of separation from all the ties of passion and even of desires. Fragment II tells of the Two Paths. Not a book for everyone. Those who enjoy reading anything by H.P.B. will expand from the reading.

Renowned occultist H P Blavatsky is famous for introducing the 'Secret Doctrine' to an astonished West. 'The Voice of the Silence' is derived from the same deep spring of Wisdom. Tibet's Panchen Lama endorsed the work as the "only true exposition in English of the Heart Doctrine of Mahayana and its noble ideal of self-sacrifice." The current (14th) Dalai Lama concurred: "I believe that this book has strongly influenced many aspirants to the wisdom and compassion of the Bodhisattva Path." The book's three segments form a step-wise introduction to this spiritual path. Fragment 1 describes the preparation of the aspirant for discipleship; Fragment 2 the methods of purification of the lower vehicles; while Fragment 3, reveals the Seven Keys which open the way to Enlightenment.
