Smita Pandey : VISION OF THE REBELS DURING 1857: Aspects Of Mobilisation, Organisation Resistance before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised VISION OF THE REBELS DURING 1857: Aspects Of Mobilisation, Organisation Resistance:

The centrality of this book is the 'vision of the revolutionaries' as manifested in their writings in archival records, their syncretic vision, miraculous modes of communications, the working of their government, and the nature and immensity of this Great War, with its pan Indian extent. The twin goals of the war were ousting the firangi looters (foreign looters) and establishing a Hindustan of Hindus and Muslims; of a spacious and absorptive idea of Hindustan where the multifarious castes and sects were all intergrated and assured of the safety of their life, religion, honour and property exemplified the extraordinary vision of the rebels.

About the Author Smita Pandey did her Honours in History from LSR, University of Delhi. She has a Masters and pursued her M. Phil from the Department of History in 2001. Her dissertation on the Rebels' Proclamation: An Awadh Based Study, was much appreciated. She did her Ph.D on Vision of the Rebels during 1857-Aspects of Mobilisation, Organisation and Resistance from Delhi University in 2007.
